People mentioned: Shaik Abdullah, Syed Zia ul-Hassan

Profile:

Shaik Abdullah was arrested in May 2002 near Hyderabad for distributing information about a banned sectarian organisation, Deendar Anjuman. The Indian government had banned the organisation in May 2001 following a series of attacks on 12 houses of worship, primarily Christian churches, carried out in the Indian states of Andhra Pradesh, Karnataka and Goa in the summer of 2000. More than 30 people were injured in the bombings.

The Indian authorities alleged that members of Deendar Anjuman, a small Sunni Muslim sect founded in 1924 and led by Syed Zia ul-Hassan, an Indian national living in Mardan, Pakistan, were responsible for the attacks. In November 2004, a special court convicted 39 individuals in the case.
