Profile:

Zhou Bin, the son of China's former security chief Zhou Yongkang, was sentenced to 18 years in prison and fined CNY 350m by the Yichang Intermediate People's Court in Hubei province on June 15, 2016, for bribery and engaging in illegal business activities. Zhou Bin indicated in court that he accepted his sentence and would not appeal. According to the court ruling, Zhou Bin and his father made use of the senior Zhou's position and accepted around CNY 98m in bribes from others in return for granting favours. Zhou Bin also colluded with others and used his father's influence to take another CNY 124m in bribes. Additionally, he was involved in the trade of restricted goods which disrupted market order. The court stated that Zhou Bin received a lenient sentence because he confessed details of his offences, acknowledged his guilt and surrendered his illegal gains.
